Gala Honoring Dr. Marilyn Hawrys Simons Raises Record $28.2 Million

More than 800 guests gathered on Wednesday, April 10 at Pier Sixty at Chelsea Piers in New York City to honor alumna and Simons Foundation President Marilyn Hawrys Simons '74, PhD '84, at the 20th Stars of Stony Brook Gala.

Hosted annually by the Stony Brook Foundation Board of Trustees, this year's celebration recognized Dr. Simons for her leadership as president of one of the nation's premier philanthropic institutions devoted to driving progress in basic science, as well as her contributions to improving educational opportunities for the underserved at the university and beyond.

The 2019 Stony Brook Gala also proved to be a record-breaker, raising an astounding $28.2 million. The total included $25 million from Dr. Simons, which will establish a new Center for Applied Economics and Public Policy at the University and another record-breaking $3.2 million plus was raised for student scholarships.

"This incredible gift will transform our economics department," said University President Samuel L. Stanley Jr., "and positively impact programs campus wide, enhancing Stony Brook's voice in public policy and bolstering the worldwide reputation of the university. I am humbled by Marilyn's vision, generosity and confidence in Stony Brook."

Governor Cuomo Visits SBU for State Budget overview

President Stanley with Governor Cuomo

Students, faculty and staff were among more than 400 people who showed up in the Student Activities Center to hear Governor Andrew Cuomo provide a Long Island overview of the 2019-2020 New York State Budget. Highlights included making the two-percent property tax cap permanent, which he says will save the average Suffolk County taxpayer $58,000 as well as a new internet sales tax for out-of-state business that will generate $45.3M in new tax revenue for both Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

To see an overview of how the budget impacted SUNY and Stony Brook University, click here for "Wins and Losses" in last month's Government and Community Relations Newsletter.

The event also was an opportunity for many elected officials to visit campus including the Senate's "Long Island Six" (right).

Jinyoung Jin's Creative Energy Transforms the Wang Center

Jinyoung Jin inhabits the installation "The Studio: Through a Surrealistic Lens."

Jinyoung Jin has transformed a little used space in the Charles B. Wang Center into a selfie-inducing, crowd-pleasing interactive art exhibit. The theatre lobby entrance hadn't been used for anything of interest until Jin, the Center's Director of Cultural Programs, determined that it would be the perfect spot to house "The Studio: Through a Surrealistic Lens," a long-term installation that invites visitors to interact with a black-and-white, three-dimensional, cartoon-like artist's studio.

Designed and presented by the South Korea-based project group GREEM (a name that translates to "picture" in Korean), the exhibition is a favorite among students and other guests who can sit in the studio and take selfies and other photos, sharing them on social media.

Pilot Program Provides Mentorship and Attire for Students Seeking Jobs

The Department of External Scholarships and Fellowships Advising at Stony Brook University started an initiative this semester called the Red Hot Career Closet and Mentoring Program, which provides clothing and mentoring to students from low-income families for interviews, internships or their first work experience after college.

The program will be giving out donated clothes, shoes, bags, overcoats and accessories from students, faculty and community members. Mentors working in the program educate participants about professional norms, helping students to feel confident as they pitch their talent and skills in the workplace.
